

A family of four is seen from behind, walking along a path made of large, stacked logs in a lush, green garden. The path leads towards a dense wall of trees. The scene is bright and sunny, with dappled light filtering through the leaves. The family consists of a woman in a light purple t-shirt and dark shorts, a young girl in a colorful polka-dot dress, a young girl in a yellow t-shirt and pink shorts, and a woman in a light blue sleeveless top and black shorts. The large white text 'Kew' is superimposed over the center of the image, with 'Royal Botanic Gardens' written above it.

Royal Botanic Gardens

Kew

Gardens of the Anthropocene: botanic gardens, people and plants

Gardens of the Anthropocene: how botanic gardens are reconnecting people to plants

Tuesday 6 December 2016

3pm

CEPA Fair, Universal Building (Main Floor)

A chance to hear first-hand some of the surprising and innovative work happening at three major botanic gardens, this discussion event will explore some of the new ways these institutions engage diverse audiences and drive social change for sustainability.

For more information contact

Sarah Roberts s.roberts@kew.org

