Please provide summary information on the process by which this report has been prepared, including information on the types of stakeholders who have been actively involved in its preparation and on material which was used as a basis for the report

The first draft report has been prepared by UNDP Serbia for the Ministry of the Environment and Spatial Planning based on the material of the existing documentation until the end of 2009. This draft report has been sent to different sectors and experts in research institutes, other stakeholders and focal points to consider and comment all the articles or questions of the report. The present report reflects above all the achievements of the Republic of Serbia in the field of biodiversity conservation during the period following 2002 when Serbia ratified Convention on Biological Diversity. Since that time the great part of the legislation (acts) related to the issue have been prepared. The institutions responsible for biodiversity conservation and management were strengthened in terms of human resources, but further actions are needed. The public awareness basis for biodiversity conservation was slightly broadened.

The present report was developed by a consultant in close cooperation with employees from the Institute for Nature Conservation, WWF and CBD focal point in the Ministry of Environment and Spatial Planning. Other stakeholders were also consulted in the process.

Please provide information on any particular circumstances in your country that are relevant to understanding the answers to the questions in this report

A wide range of entities are taking place in the Republic of Serbia in the realm of conserving and sustainably using biological diversity. In Serbia, a few institutions are involved in implementing the Convention due to divided jurisdiction and competences. A broad range of laws govern the various facets of protecting and sustainably using biodiversity, a term which has not been generally incorporated into the Serbian legal system. Both legal processes and activities to achieve the goals of the Convention on Biological Diversity are present in Serbia.

In addition, research institutions, some industry and non-governmental organizations are very active in this sector. Nonetheless, the "Red Lists" of endangered species continue to grow within the country.

Although Serbia ratified CBD relatively recently (2002), the goals in biodiversity and nature conservation were already previously high on the agenda. Due to political and economical circumstances, these issues were neglected, but lately, Serbia is dedicated to rich the standards of the EU in terms of Biodiversity conservation and nature protection.

The COP has established programmes of work that respond to a number of Articles. Please identify the relative priority accorded to each theme and the adequacy of resources. This will allow subsequent information on implementation of each Article to be put into context. There are other questions on implementation of the programmes of work at the end of these guidelines.

Further comments on work programmes and priorities

3, 4. The Republic of Serbia does not have coastal or marine ecosystems.

1; 5; 7; 9. Serbia has very rich biodiversity. Serbia covers ca. 2.1% of European continent, however, it comprises approximately 39% of vascular flora, 40% of bryophyte flora, 51% of fish fauna, 49% of reptiles and amphibians fauna, 74% of bird fauna and 67% out of the total percentage for Europe. Serbia is rich in endemic species (Balkan endemics - 8.06% or 287 species, local endemics - 1.5% or 59 species).

Serbia is characterized by a large diversity of plant and animal communities and has examples of almost all main types of habitats and biotopes known in Europe. In addition to commercial species, Serbia is the motherland of many traditional and rare cultivars and breeds, and many wild relatives of domesticated species.

All groups of ecosystems include unique habitats and are inhabited by rare, endangered species, representative or economically valuable plant, fungi and animal species.

2;4;6;8;10. The national resources for accomplishment of the obligations and recommendations for reaching the aims in any of the ecosystem groups are rather limited than adequate. This is due to both the economical difficulties suffered by the country at the moment and to the character of the nature protection investment process.

Article 5 Cooperation

11. What is the relative priority afforded to implementation of this Article and the associated decisions by your country?

a) High	x	b) Medium		c) Low
---------	---	-----------	--	--------	--

12. To what extent are the resources available adequate for meeting the obligations and recommendations made?

a) Good		b) Adequate	x	c) Limiting		d) Severely limiting

Further comments on relative priority and on availability of resources

11, 12. The aims at biodiversity protection and sustainable use of the biological resources in Serbia cannot be reached without international partnership. This is due to biological diversity, which is a global phenomenon and the state borders must not part the countries, but unite them for the execution of joint programs in the field. Besides, rather small countries are especially important to cooperate in Biodiversity Conservation.

The international cooperation in the field of nature protection can be estimated as a high-priority task. The country resources are adequate for a partnership with either closer or distant countries of interest.

13. Is your country actively cooperating with other Parties in respect of areas beyond national jurisdiction for the conservation and sustainable use of biological diversity?

a) bilateral cooperation (please give details below)	x
b) international programmes (please give details below)	x

Further comments on implementation of this Article

Serbia is a party to a number of Multilateral Environmental Agreements and Conventions related to nature protection and biodiversity. Serbia ratified the UN Convention on Biological Diversity in 2002 and acceded to its Cartagena Protocol in 2006. This not only underscores Serbia's commitment to the principle of biodiversity conservation, but it also provides legitimacy for incorporating biodiversity protection into the regulatory framework. Serbia is a party to the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change - UNFCCC (succeeded in 2001, Kyoto Protocol (ratified in 2007) and the UN Convention to Combat Desertification - UNCCD (ratified in 2008).

The Republic of Serbia also participates in the following agreements and conventions: the Ramsar Convention of Wetlands of International Importance (succeeded in 2001), the Convention on the Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage (succeeded in 2001), the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Flora and Fauna (CITES) (ratified in 2002), International Convention for the Protection of Birds (1973), Convention on the Conservation of Migratory Species of Wild Animals - Bonn Convention (2007), Convention on the Conservation of European Wildlife and Natural Habitats - Bern Convention (2007), Convention on the Protection and Sustainable Development of the Carpathians (2007), International Treaty on Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture (2001), Convention on Cooperation for Protection and Sustainable use of the Danube River (2003). Serbia is developing protected areas with neighbouring countries including: Croatia (Upper Danube), Hungary (Subotica Send Area), Romania (Djerdap-Porta Ferul), Bulgaria (Balkan-Stara Planina), Macedonia (Sar planina), Albania and Montenegro (Prokletije) and Bosnia-Hetzegovina (Tara-Zvijezda). Serbia has a twinning program in strengthening capacity in Biodiversity Conservation with Austria and Greece.

From 2004 onwards, several key regulations were passed focusing on nature protection and sustainable use of biological diversity components, including: Law on Environmental Protection, Law on Nature Protection and others. Also, strategic documents have been prepared in which protection nature and biological diversity gained certain prominence. Along with others, the Sustainable Development Strategy and National Environmental Protection Programme were adopted (2010). With the aim of implementing Convention on Biological Diversity in Republic of Serbia, numerous projects have been done so far, among which the following: Harmonisation of National Nomenclature in Codification and Classification of Habitats with Standards of International Community, Red Book on Serbian Flora 1, whilst the work on 'National Strategy and Action Plan on Conservation of Biological Diversity (NBSAP)' is in finalization phase. The completion of the work on 'National Strategy of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources and Goods' is in progress.

Further comments on implementation of this Article

The identification of introduced species and their impact is one of the priorities in the development of management plans for national and natural parks, as well as for other protected areas. In these plans are foreseen measures for prevention of the invasion of introduced species or for their elimination. The attention is given to human effected organisms, as well as of species harmed economically, important species and ecosystems. The education, training and public-awareness measures concerning the issue of alien species are implemented at a very low level.

Further comments on implementation of this Article

105; 106; 107. A connection between the traditional way of resource use and their sustainable reproduction is not developed. A complete strategy and action plan on this issue are in the process of development.

There are no legal mechanisms for the implementation of the Article 8j of the Convention or for the consecutive stimulation and distribution of the benefits from traditional practices.

108. A process of the development of Clearing house mechanism is starting, which is counted to accumulate and distribute information, including the international experience regarding Article 8j.

110 to 124. The main problem in the implementation of Article 8j is the lack of a complete concept on this issue, as well as law-conducted mechanisms and resources for implementation and stimulation.
