INTERNATIONAL DAY
FOR BIOLOGICAL DIVERSITY
Marine Biodiversity

23 May 2012

"To most people, 'biodiversity' is a misunderstood concept. In simple terms, Biodiversity is all plants and animals that we have and all their interactions and the differences between them - this also includes human beings." South African Minister of Water and Environmental Affairs on the International Day of Biological Diversity

#biodiversity means to me the earth, water and the diversity in the greenery and all moving creations on it #biodiversity to me is what makes this planet miraculously unique and profoundly sophisticated.

What does biodiversity mean to you? "A luscious living larder, lustfully looted, lucratively laundered and lamentably lost."

Biodiversity to me means the amazing beauty in every component of nature, in sync to ensure that we get to live every day free of charge!

What biodiversity means to some "Biodiversity means to me a celebration of life's wonders; nature's jewellery box of treasures: handcrafted over millennia; each unique, fragile and magnificent; who's craftsmanship and beauty is worthy of immeasurable respect".

HAPPY BIODIVERSITY DAY from the Cities Biodiversity Centre!

May you be inspired by nature and all its beauty and complexity to do something extraordinary today!
